The world was robbed of the 21st-century Twin Towers most of us always wanted.

Click above for more comments that rebuke the cynicism that tried to replace the Twin Towers and failed.

This is a great idea. I miss the Twin Towers. I've always wanted to go inside, all the way up to the top.
May this effort succeed, and may the truth about 9/11
be revealed soon.

My first time visiting New York City was in the summer of 2005. I never had the chance to experience the twin towers in person. I would love to be able to do that someday.

Stephen Corbett All Other Americans 10/16/2006
The footprints of the fallen towers should be the memorial area, perhaps reflecting pools with a permanent beam of light aimed skyward at night. The opposite squares should be used to build new and better towers, same footprint but opposite, and at least the same height as the originals.

As a native New Yorker, rebuilding the Towers would serve as an act of defiance and strength against the terrorists who took them down on that day. In building the Freedom Tower, those of us who knew and saw the Twin Towers everyday will still feel the gaping hole that lingers in our minds and hearts of the buildings that made New York the greatest city in the world.

America is considered the best in the world so it only makes sense to replace the towers, with better safety features and show the world that america can move on, but take with it the twin towers and the memory of all those who lost their lives.the towers were an inspiration to us all and we didnt know what we lost
till they were gone

leigh tanner * All Other Americans 10/11/2006

aaron tellez Citizens of Other Nations 10/11/2006
if you don't rebuild the twin towers, NYC won't be the same city.

CPL Nathaniel Faulhaber Our Armed Forces & Families 10/10/2006

I have been to both NYC and Southeastern Afghanistan and have seen for myself the vision of the world that the terrorists would have replace NYC. It is not coincidental that one culture cannot build anything beyond a one- story mud hut, while another builds skyscrapers. The difference is hard work and motivation. The twin towers were, and should be again, monuments to that which is most precious in America: the pursuit of our own well-being,
prosperity, and happiness.

Antoinette Colakov Metro New Yorkers 10/9/2006

I agree with the many people who feel that the only way to show the world WE WILL NOT BACK DOWN and WE WILL NOT BE BROKEN, is to REBUILD the TOWERS. Any other extra buildlings are fine, but the TOWERS must be REBUILT!

David Estes All Other Americans 10/9/2006

Timothy McHugh All Other Americans 10/9/2006

I was fond of the Twin Towers from day 1 despite never being able to visit them. On 911, I was empty ever since, losing my favorite buildings to Osama (Laud) and his jihad goons! We should stop choosing sides over Israel and Palastine and deny them any trophy to choke off their recruits for this. The Pit in NYC makes me empty and is a trophy for Laud, and if the Twins are not returned, then Laud wins! The Iraq war only helps Laud to win further more support! IN YOUR FACE MR. LAUD! REBUILD!!!

Yeah, the freedom tower is a nice tower and would look nice... elsewhere!!!

The WTC site needs to be rebuilt as it was except with bigger towers, 1776 feet tall each for instance so that NYC's famous skyline can be restored to all its glory

- Shaun Kitchen Citizens of Other Nations 10/14/2006
- I live in the UK so I didn't have that much knowledge of the WTS before 9/11 i would have loved to have had the chance to visit them in all there glory.
I think that rebuilding the Twin Towers is the best way to show the terrorists that they can't break the American spirit and changing the New York skyline is only a victory for the terrorists.
Rebuilding the Twin Towers is the best memorial for all that died or suffered loss of loved ones on that terrible day.
- Lewis Thompson Citizens of Other Nations 10/14/2006
- This is the right thing to do. We all know it. The rebuilt Twin Towers will represent so much more than defiance. They will represent unity, strength and resolve. Please, add your name and do the right thing.
- Randall Krause All Other Americans 10/14/2006
- To not rebuild anew in the likeness of the old, is not a sign of patriotism, but rather of cowardice and apprehension. A proper memorial must pay tribute to the sheer grandeur that once was once a symbol of lower Manhattan, and that requires a construction worthy of positive comparison. For all the people who gave their lives on September 11, how can we possibly equate the Freedom Tower with hope and prosperity for the nation's future?
- John Meyer All Other Americans 10/13/2006
- Restore the glory of the Twin Towers and show those who would impose their will upon us that WE, the people, will NEVER crumble. Even when our grand structures are toppled, WE stand tall and defiant.

God Bless America. May the Gospel of Christ spread to every heart and mind.

- and the western world can put a big finger up to all that would try to destroy the freedom we have!
I never got chance to visit the original twin towers but have been to NYC 3 times since and it really is a tragedy that they may never return.
- Paul Lynch All Other Americans 10/8/2006
- I am so glad to add my name here. I spent half my life in New Jersey and loved the towers, always taking family and friends to the observation area. Even though I now live in Idaho I say: Let's put them up again!

- It is not an impossible project. Better security and safety features are available, and we're not wanting for construction workers and all the skilled labor required for such a project. Nor are the funds lacking. Two towers side by side, and that crazy big antenna topping them off. I still see them in my mind's eye every day. Things can never be exactly as they were, but pride, achievement and ingenuity have no shelf life. Twin towers please!

- Rubens Guifarro Citizens of Other Nations 10/3/2006
- I always wanted to go to the "twin towers" since I was a kid, I did it a year before 911. I believe they shuld be rebuilt again in the same way they stood before that day. Building something else would mean nothing but money spent. I would love to see the world trade center again...the way it was.
- Oana Alexandrescu Citizens of Other Nations 10/3/2006
- As it has been said, before the Twin Towers are a monumental part of New York history. In my opinion building one tower ruins the whole concept of "twin towers" and the only wright way to honour those that passed away on that horrible day, is to remember them and the Twin Towers, as they were: tall and proud bringing joy in every persons' heart.
